*To the President and Honorable Members of the Common Council,

Gentlemen—We respectfully request that you make provision for the installation of a new Gamewell system as recommended by the Board of Fire Underwriters. In fact, this recommendation is mandatory if the present insurance rates are to continue.

The carefully prepared estimate shows that it will require approximately $415,000 to install a complete new Gamewell system, including a fireproof building, which, according to our judgment, can be erected on ground already owned by the city so that the purchase of additional real estate will not be necessary.

Thanking you in advance for the consideration, we feel sure you will give this, which is in the interest of our entire citizenship, we are

We, the undersigned, owners of more than 20 per cent. of the real estate located in the block, in the City of Indianapolis, Indiana, bounded on the south by Forty-sixth Street, on the east by Central Avenue, on the north by Forty-seventh Street, on the west by Washington Boulevard, hereby protest against the passage of proposed General Ordinance No. 39, 1927, through which it is proposed to amend General Ordinance No. 114, 1922, by which proposed amendment, if passed, would change the use of the property located at the northwest corner of Central Avenue and Forty-sixth Street in Indianapolis, Indiana, from a resident to a business use; that the property for which such change of use is proposed is further described as:

Beginning on the west property line of Central Avenue at its intersection with the north property line of 46th Street; thence north with the west property line of Central Avenue, a distance of 83.66 feet; thence west and parallel to the north property line of 46th Street, a distance of 150 feet; thence south and parallel to west property line of Central Avenue, a distance of 83.66 feet; thence east a distance of 150 feet to place or point of beginning.

that the rezoning of the above described property from a resident to a business use has been fully and thoroughly investigated and determined against such proposed change by the Board of Zoning Appeals of the City Plan Commission of Indianapolis, Indiana; that we further protest against the practice of being required to defend against the change of use of this property before both the Board of Zoning Appeals and again before your honorable body, the Common Council of the City of Indianapolis.

This provision shall not, however, lessen the requirements herein provided in reference to the storage, use and handling of the class of film, itself, which is included in this subdivision.

(f) Studios, laboratories and exchanges shall be provided with aisle space not less than thirty (30) inches in width.

At least two (2) exits, remote from each other shall be provided from each floor of each such building. Every exit shall be marked "EXIT" in letters not less than six (6) inches high and by an illuminated red sign with letters of the same height, and shall conform to all other present and future statutory and ordinance requirements in reference thereto.

They shall be of solid reinforced concrete not less than two and one-half (2½) inches thick; or of solid reinforced cinder concrete not less than three and one-half (3½) inches thick; or of solid gypsum blocks not less than three inches thick; or of terra cotta blocks or hollow tile not less than four inches thick; or of metal lath on steel studing covered with cement or gypsum plaster not less than two and one-half (2½) inches thick; or of brick not less than four inches thick. Block partitions shall be plastered on each side to a thickness of not less than one-quarter of an inch.

All openings and windows within or opening into or out from or lighting in or upon any portions of any building which is included herein in which the within included class of film is used, stored or handled, shall be protected with wire glass or doors of an approved type with metal facings on each side thereof.

Section 5. (a) Storage. One hundred reels, not exceeding five hundred pounds (500) lbs. or less may be stored in cabinets, at any one time, but not over one hundred such reels may be placed in any one cabinet at any one time.

This limitation in laboratories, however, shall not be in excess of two hundred (200) reels, and not exceeding one thousand (1000) pounds and not over two hundred (200) reels in any one cabinet at any one time.

Any storage in excess of one hundred reels shall be in film vaults and not in cabinets or other places.

(b) No film vault shall exceed seven hundred and fifty (750) cubic feet in actual storage capacity, including aisles.

(c) The floor and walls of every film vault shall be made of stone at least six (6) inches thick, or of brick at least eight (8) inches thick, or of hollow tile at least twelve (12) inches thick laid with webs horizontal or of the interlocking type; or of reinforced concrete at least six (6) inches thick. In fireproof buildings, as well as in fireproof portions of such buildings as are constructed and partitioned and divided as set forth in "section 4 (a)" hereof, the building floor may be used as the floor of the vault if such building floor is equivalent, in fire resistance, to the requirements given above.

But where the floor of the vault is laid directly on the ground, it may be of an incumbustible material with no limitation as to thickness.

Vaults shall be supported by masonry or steel or sufficient strength to carry the load safely.

Beams shall rest at both ends on steel girders, iron or steel columns, or walls or piers of masonry.

Hollow tiles shall not be used for foundations of any vault.

Where the design of the buildings is such that an excessive floor load would result from having the film vault filled with water, the film vault shall be provided with one or more scuppers, giving a total area of inlet into said scuppers and thereby out of each such vault equal to three (3) square inches for each sprinkler head installed in the said respective film vault.

(d) The roof of the vault shall be an independent reinforced concrete roof at least four (4) inches thick or of such concrete and stone together constituting such thickness.

In fireproof buildings, as well as in fireproof portions of such buildings as are constructed and partitioned and divided as set forth in "section 4 (a)" hereof, where the floor above is equivalent to this, it may serve as the roof if side walls are rigidly tied into it. In construction of this type, an additional false ceiling, constructed of metal lath and cement plaster one (1) inch thick, and with no openings to the concealed space above, or a false ceiling of strong and adequate wire grating with no openings to the concealed space above, may be used to limit the total interior vault space to seven hundred and fifty (750) cubic feet.

A vent may extend through this false ceiling and concealed space.

(e) Film vaults shall not be provided with skylights or glass windows other than as specified under "Glass in Vent," subsection "n" section 5 hereof.

(f) Proximity of vaults to boilers, stacks or other sources of heat shall be avoided and under no circumstances, shall any vault be nearer than two (2) feet to a stack or nearer than ten (10) feet to any boiler or boiler room, to any heater, heating apparatus, or heating appliances; and no heating coils, pipes or other heating appliances shall be allowed in any film vault, except as hereinafter specifically provided.

Except, where the permitted, lawful and authorized construction of the film vault is such that heating is required in order to prevent freezing of the fire extinguishing devices, pipes and system, heat may be introduced into the film vault providing the heating coils are located at the ceiling of the vault, above the aisle space only and not above the racks themselves, which heating coils or pipes shall be protected by a wire screen, firmly and permanently fixed and located at least 6 inches below or distance from such heating coils or pipes.

With the further condition that no other than hot water or low pressure steam heating shall be allowed to be so introduced into such a vault.

With the further condition that such heating devices, coils and pipes be fitted with automatic control limiting the temperature to a degree not in excess of 50 degrees Fahrenheit heat.

(g) A fire door shall be provided on each face of the wall on door openings of vault.

The outer door shall be of the swinging type and close into a rabbet, or otherwise be made tight to prevent passage of flame around edges; it shall be self-closing, and if fastened open shall be arranged to close automatically in case of fire or decomposition originating in or out of the vault.

(h) Racks, in film vaults, shall be built of metal or other incombustible material and except as hereinafter otherwise specifically permitted in this subsection (h) shall be arranged to prevent film containers being placed in position other than on edge, in a vertical position.

Vertical incombustible partitions, equivalent in heat insulation and durability to $\frac{3}{8}$ -inch hard asbestos, and extending from floor to ceiling, shall be provided to divide racks into sections so that the amount of film protected by any sprinkler shall not exceed 830 pounds.

Partitions shall be substantial and have exposed edges protected.

Means shall be provided to keep the containers, on each side of such partitions at least one inch removed from and away from such partitions. Racks shall not obstruct any vent openings.

Racks shall be so arranged that film cannot be placed under or between containers in the vertical position.

Film shall not be stored or kept on the floor.

No film shall ever be kept in any vault unless in metal containers or in shipping containers of a type approved by the United States interstate commerce commission.

No film shall ever be kept so as to obstruct any scupper.

Where all films, within a vault, are stored and kept in interstate commerce commission containers, and where none within a vault are in any other kind of containers, the film so contained in the said interstate commerce commission containers may be stored in horizontal positions upon the within described racks, provided that, in addition to the other requirements and specifications contained herein in reference to such racks, no part of such interstate commerce commission containers shall be closer than one (1) inch from the next higher, as well as not less than one (1) inch from the next lower rack or shelf.

(i) All lights in film vaults shall be at the ceiling only and of the fixed marine type, with vapor-proof globes and conduct wiring. All switches shall be outside the vault and shall be arranged with a small pilot light to indicate, on outside of vault, whether vault lights are lighted or off. (See Section 6-A).

(j) Each film vault, and each compartment of a cabinet, when the cabinet contains more than five hundred (500) pounds of film shall separately vent to the outer air, with a vent having a minimum effective sectional area of seventy (70) square inches for each one hundred (100) reels or not less than one hundred and forty (140) square inches per 1,000 lbs. of film capacity.

For a standard vault of seven hundred and fifty (750) cubic feet, the vent opening shall be not less than fourteen hundred (1400) square inches, and for vaults of a capacity less than seven hundred and fifty (750) cubic feet, a vent opening equivalent to two (2) square inches for every cubic foot of capacity shall be provided.

(k) The outlet of each vent shall be above roof or shall be made to face street, court, or other clear space, giving a distance, if such vent faces a street, court, or other clear space, of at least 30 feet to doors, windows, or other openings, of any adjacent buildings as well as 30 feet, at least, to doors, windows or other openings in wings or in ells of the same building if such wing or ell of said building project beyond the wall where such vent outlet is located.

Openings in walls of a building in the same plane or parallel planes and facing in the same direction as that in which the vent is situated shall not be considered as coming within the intent of this rule.

No vent outlet shall be within 25 feet, measured horizontally, of any exterior fire escape, nor shall it be below any such fire escape which is within said distance.

(1) All horizontal or vertical vent flues inside of the building shall be of a construction equivalent to that of chimneys as specified in the building code or laws of the City of Indianapolis, except that for 100 or less reels the flue may be of riveted sheet metal of at least No. 18, U. S. gage, covered with 1 inch of heat insulation material and not nearer than 9 inches to any combustible material. Exterior metal flues shall be of a construction equivalent to that of smoke stacks, as specified in or required by building code or laws of the City of Indianapolis.

(m) Each vent opening directly through an exterior wall shall be protected against the weather by single thickness glass not more than 1-16 inch thick, painted a dark color, or by other incombustible fragile materials, in a sash arranged to open automatically, in case of fire, by the use of an automatic releasing device placed inside the film storage vault. The area of the glass shall be equivalent to and fully as great as the effective sectional area of the vent opening.

No pane of glass, in such event, shall be smaller than 200 square inches.

Any similar or like protection, equivalent to the above, may be accepted in lieu thereof.

(n) In the instance of a film exchange being located in a building of not more than one story in height, or in the event of a film vault being located upon the same the vent for such film vault or cabinet may be constructed through the roof of said respective building, provided such vent opening in such roof, does not thereby become and will not be nearer than ten (10) feet to any door, window or other opening of any adjacent building and provided such vent opening shall be above and beyond all walls and other portions of the building in which such roof vent is constructed, except that the parapet walls, which may necessarily rise a reasonable distance above the roof of such building may be higher than the vent opening in the roof of such building.

Provided further that the roof vent, in such a building, shall have walls of brick or concrete at least four inches in thickness, extending above the level of the roof at least thirty inches, and such vent wall shall be capped with a concrete slab not less than four inches thick or a galvanized iron hood of at least No. 15 U. S. gage, or its equivalent.

If such vent is closed on top with a slab, then there shall be on one side of said vent an opening with permanent horizontal louvres so constructed that the same cannot be closed, which said opening shall have a clear net area equivalent to the cross sectional area of the vent.

If such vent is topped with a hood, then such hood shall be so constructed as to permit as nearly continuous an opening around the top of the vent as may be practical, allowing only such supports as are necessary for stability and firmness of the hood.

A light wire screen, not coarser than one-eighth ($\frac{1}{8}$) inch mesh, shall cover the outlet of each vent and said screen shall be arranged so as not to interfere with the automatic operation of the sash or of any other permitted venting devices. Bars and screens designed to prevent burglary or injury to contents shall not have a mesh of less than four inches; shall be located either inside or outside of the said light wire screen and shall give a net opening equal to that provided for in subsection (j) thereof.

Where the type of construction of the vent requires, a permanent guard shall be installed to prevent films from being forced against, clogging, reducing or blocking the vent openings in vaults or cabinets.

Cabinets holding over fifty (50) standard reels of film shall be divided into at least two distinct compartments, each compartment provided with an independent door and vent; the separating partition shall be as air tight as possible and of substantial construction equivalent to the sides of the cabinet. The exterior sides of the cabinet and the doors may be of 18 U. S. gage metal, double walled, with one inch of air space between, or of material and construction of equivalent fire resistive capacity. Rocks or shelves shall be so arranged that the material immediately adjacent to the partitions shall not touch the same on either side. Shelves or racks within the cabinet must be of metal and arranged to facilitate distribution of water from sprinklers where sprinklers are required. Doors to compartments must be so arranged and weighed as to remain normally closed and must be kept fastened by catches at three points, and must be normally sufficiently tight to prevent entering of flame due to the burning of nitricellulose in an adjoining compartment. Doors on divided cabinets must swing from the center so that they will not expose the contents of one compartment to the other. Cabinets holding over one hundred (100) standard reels of films shall be equipped with one automatic sprinkler for each compartment.

Cabinets for use in laboratories or cutting and editing rooms in studios may be provided with drawers, racks, shelves, or other interior arrangements suitable for the purpose for which such cabinets are used.

Section 6. Sprinklers and other protection. (a) All buildings where nitrocellulose films are produced, stored or handled shall be equipped throughout with automatic sprinklers, except that in the portion of any "exchange" or establishment which is used exclusively for office, clerical and administration purposes, sprinklers are not by this subdivision required.

(b) Each film vault shall be equipped with automatic sprinklers, with a ratio of at least one head to each 62½ cubic feet of total vault space based on interior measurements. A standard vault of 750 cubic feet shall be equipped with not less than twelve (12) standard automatic sprinklers. In no case shall storage space exceed 830 pounds of films per sprinkler. Sprinklers shall be arranged so as to give uniform distribution within and above the racks intended for the storage of the film.

- Sheet metal baffles shall be installed in every vault and so arranged as to separate all sprinkler heads. Baffles shall extend at least twelve (12) inches below ceiling.

(c) Sprinkler systems for film vaults shall be equipped with a $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch drip line and valve, which shall be tested weekly. Such test shall not be required if a recording pressure gauge is attached to the drip line.
